CONTINUING MEDICAL EDUCATION
DISCLOSURE OF RELEVANT FINANCIAL RELATIONSHIPS FORM

The Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education’s (ACCME) Accreditation Requirements, Policies, and Standards for Commercial Support (SCS) are as follows:

SCS: 6.1: Any individual with control over CME content (faculty member, author, course director, committee members, planners, etc.) must disclose to learners any relevant financial relationship(s), to include the following information:

- The name of the individual; the name of the commercial interest(s); the nature of the relationship the person has with each commercial interest (i.e., consultant, speaker, investigator, grantee, researcher, stock shareholder, etc.)

SCS: 6.2: For an individual with no relevant financial relationship(s), the learners must be informed that no relevant financial relationship(s) exist.

SCS: 5.1: The content or format of a CME activity or its related materials must promote improvements or quality in healthcare and not a specific propriety business interest of a commercial interest.

SCS: 5.2: Presentations must give a balanced view of therapeutic options. Use of generic names will contribute to this impartiality. If the CME educational material or content includes trade names, where available trade names from several companies should be used, not just trade names from a single company.

To be in compliance with the ACCME’s Accreditation Requirements, Policies and SCS, the Chicago Medical Society, an accredited provider, requires that all members involved in the CME activity, either directly- or jointly-provided, who are in a position to control the content, must disclose the existence of any type of relevant financial interests or relationships that might have an impact on the CME presentation and create a conflict of interest. All relevant financial disclosures will be communicated to the CME participants. Disclosures should be made in writing and disclosed to the CME participants prior to the start of the CME activity. Individuals that refuse to disclose relevant financial relationships will be disqualified from the CME activity. All faculty members, presenters and authors are required to base their presentations and recommendations on the best available evidence. In addition, faculty members, authors, course directors, planners, committee members, and CME staff members (for example) are advised to refer to the Chicago Medical Society’s policies on commercial support and disclosures of relevant financial relationships as well as to the ACCME’s Standards for Commercial Support (www.accme.org).

Please list the names of any entities producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing health care goods or services, consumed by, or used on, patients with the exemption of non-profit or government organizations and non-health care related companies with which you or your spouse/partner have, or have had, a relevant financial relationship within the past 12 months. For this purpose we consider the relevant financial relationships of your spouse or partner that you are aware of to be yours.

Describe what you or your spouse/partner received (i.e. salary, honorarium, etc.) The Chicago Medical Society does NOT want to know how much you received.

Glossary of Terms

Commercial Interest: The ACCME defines a “commercial interest” as any entity producing, marketing, re-selling, or distributing health care goods or services consumed by, or used on, patients, with the exemption of non-profit or government organizations and non-health care related companies.

Relevant Financial Relationships: The ACCME requires anyone in control of CME content to disclose relevant financial relationships to the accredited provider. Individuals must also include in their disclosure the relevant financial relationships of a spouse or partner. The ACCME defines relevant financial relationships as financial relationships in any amount that create a conflict of interest and that occurred in the twelve-month period preceding the time that the individual was asked to assume a role controlling content of the CME activity. The ACCME has not set a minimal dollar amount—any amount, regardless of how small, creates the incentive to maintain or increase the value of the relationship. Financial relationships are those relationships in which the individual benefits by receiving a salary, royalty, intellectual property rights, consulting fee, honoraria for promotional speakers’ bureau, ownership interest (e.g., stocks, stock options or other ownership interest, excluding diversified mutual funds), or other financial benefit. Financial benefits are usually associated with roles such as employment, management position, independent contractor (including contracted research), consulting, speaking and teaching, membership on advisory committees or review panels, board membership, and other activities from which remuneration is received, or expected.

Conflict of Interest (COI): The ACCME considers financial relationships to create conflicts of interest in CME when individuals have both a financial relationship with a commercial interest and the opportunity to affect the content of CME about the products or services of that commercial interest. The potential for maintaining or increasing the value of the financial relationship with the commercial interest creates an incentive to influence the content of the CME—an incentive to insert commercial bias.
