Mr. Bender has disclosed that he does not have any relevant financial relationships with commercial interests.

Date: September 30, 2015 at Maggiano's Banquets
111 W. Grand Ave, Chicago, IL 60654
6:00-7:00 PM CME Lecture

This CME program will examine RVU based productivity models and provide insight on compensation models affected by the ACA. Today, physician productivity and compensation are moving toward models based on Relative Value Units (RVUs). RVUs reflect the relative level of time, skill, training and intensity required of a physician to provide a given service. RVUs therefore are a method for calculating the volume of work or effort expended by a physician in treating patients. The increased use of RVU has been highly significant and appears to be expanding. This rapid growth has caused a gap in the learning curve for many doctors and administrators who may never have had in-depth exposure to RVU-based compensation formulas.

Target Audience: All Physicians & Residents

Desired Learning Outcomes: At the completion of this learning activity, participants should be able to:

- Examine and explain RVU based productivity models.
- Review physician compensation models and understand how they are being affected by the Affordable Care Act.
- Identify how quality metrics will impact physician compensation in the future.

The Chicago Medical Society is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians. The Chicago Medical Society designates each live activity for a maximum of 1.0 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit (s)[™]. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
